Ben Jedid removes Boumedienne aides

BEIRUT, June 9 (R)—A Paris-based news magazine reported today that Algerian President Chadli Ben Jedid had approved the removal of three close aides of late President Houari Boumedienne, including former Foreign Minister Abdul Aziz Bouteflika, from the ruling National Liberation Front Party politburo. The Arabic-language weekly Al Mostabai quoted no source for its report. It said the other two men were former Transport Minister Ahmed Draia and former Agriculture Minister Mohamed Tayebi Larabi. All three lost their ministerial posts in a reshuffle earlier this year. Mr. Bouteflika holds the post of adviser to President Ben Jedid in the new cabinet headed by Premier Mohamed Abdul Ghani. The magazine report said Mr. Bouteflika had gone to Paris. There was no confirmation of the report in Algiers. But informed sources there said Mr. Bouteflika had not taken part in any official meeting since Mr. Ben Jedid was elected president in February this year and the other two men had also been out of the limelight recently.

Regional Briefs

TEHRAN, June 9 (R)—About 900 ancillary workers at Iran's Ahadan refinery complex have gone on strike to demand direct employment by the National Iranian Oil Company (NIOC), their representatives said today. The workers are currently employed by three private contractors responsible for painting, air conditioning and maintenance of administrative areas at the Gulf oil centre. Informed sources said work at the refinery itself would not be affected. The Ahadan workers are the latest privately-employed staff to demand employment by the state in order to guarantee job security at a time when official estimates of unemployment in Iran range from one to 3.5 million.

SEOUL, June 9 (R)—South Korea's Energy and Resources Minister Chang Yic-Joon, left today for a 10-day visit to Saudi Arabia and other oil-producing countries in the Middle East to discuss oil supplies. Informed sources said he would look into the possibility of South Korea importing crude oil directly rather than through major international concessionaires. South Korea, which produces no oil, plans to import 196.6 million barrels of crude oil this year, compared with 166.5 million barrels last year.

LONDON, June 9 (R)—A 22-year-old Palestinian was sentenced to life imprisonment today for his part in a submachine-gun and grenade attack on an Israeli airline crew bus in London in which a stewardess was killed. In sentencing Jerusalem-born Fahad Mihvi, Sir Hugh Griffiths said only by "the merest chance" were more people not killed in the attack on Aug. 20 last year. Mihvi was found guilty of murdering Irit Gidron and attempting to murder Judith Arnon, who was shot in the head in the attack. He was accompanied by another pro-Palestinian commando who blew himself up in the attack or was killed by an explosion from one of Mihvi's grenades.

MUSCAT, June 9 (R)—Omani Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Qais Al Zawawi held talks in Muscat today with British Foreign Office Deputy Undersecretary Anthony Parsons. Radio Oman said the talks dealt with bilateral relations and other issues of mutual interest. Later, Sir Anthony had an audience with Sultan Qaboos, the radio said.

BAGHDAD, June 9 (R)—Iraq today decided to form a consultative council to advise the state on legal matters. The Iraq News Agency, reporting this, said the decision was taken by the Revolutionary Command Council (RCC) ruling in the country. It added that the new council, to be made up of a chairman, two vice-chairmen and a number of assistants, would replace a legal department set up over 50 years ago.

Bahrain, Singapore call for new world economic order

tectionist policies of developed countries and called for the establishment of a new international economic order.

A joint statement, issued at the end of a five-day visit to Singapore by the Emir of Bahrain, Sheikh Isa Bin Sulman Al Khalifa, said U.N. resolutions on a new world economic order should be implemented.

They called on developed countries to refrain from introducing any protectionist measures that would be "inimical to the interests of developing countries."

On the Palestine and Middle East questions the two sides called for a just and lasting settlement based on all United Nations resolutions.

The statement said the Emir and Singapore Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew discussed an economic agreement signed during the visit would help increase two-way trade and strengthen economic relations between the two countries, it said.

Details of the economic agreement were not disclosed.

Pope visits 'long, symbolic struggle' town

NOWA HUTA, Poland, June 9 (R)—Pope John Paul today visited the area where Poland's Communist authorities tried to build a city without God, and found it packed with cheering Roman Catholics.

Visiting the shrine of Migula Monastery, the Pope recalled the long and symbolic struggle with the Communist authorities to build a church at the adjoining steelmill complex of Nowa Huta. It took 10 years to win permission to build the church at Nowa Huta, and there were riots in 1960 when police tried to move the cross which stood on the selected site.

It then took another 10 years to build the church, and it was finally opened in 1977 by the Pope when he was Archbishop Karol Wojtyla of Krakow.

But the Pope was not allowed to visit the church today. The Communist authorities had excluded this step from his nine-day tour of Poland which ends tomorrow.

The Pontiff contented himself

AMMAN, June 9 (JNA)—Some 43 athletes from the Jordanian armed forces today started a five-day tournament of Tae Kwo Do (Korean karate) organised by the military sports federation. His Highness Crown Prince Hassan, who attended the first session of the games, distributed certificates to a number of participants who excelled in the first day's performance. Attending with the Crown Prince were Minister of Culture and Youth Sharif Fawwaz Sharaaf, the commander in chief of the Jordanian armed forces Lt. Gen. Sharif Zaid Ibn Shaker as well as a number of high ranking army officers.

Israeli-backed militias, U.N. Dutch troops clash in southern Lebanon

AL MANSOURI, Lebanon, June 9 (R)—Israeli-backed rightist militias clashed with Dutch United Nations forces at a village checkpoint in southern Lebanon today and then bombarded the area with artillery.

Corporal Edward Keel of the Dutch U.N. peace-keeping force (UNIFIL) in the region told reporters that a group of rightist militiamen opened up with machine-guns at dawn in an attempt to advance to the centre of Al Mansouri village following unconfirmed reports of infiltration by Palestinian commandos.

"The Dutch force had to return the fire and prevented the militiamen from entering the centre of Al Mansouri," he added.

After the Dutch troops retreated, he said, rightist artillery positions at Tallet Al Bayyada began shelling the village.

Dutch reinforcements were today seen forming a security belt around the village to prevent the infiltration of armed men.

Palestinian sources said Israeli and rightist gunners overnight shelled Palestinian-leftist strongholds in the region's central sector.

The state-run Beirut Radio said four people were wounded and material damage was caused in the bombardment of the market town of Nabatiyah and nearby villages. Israeli aircraft today kept up their flights over the coast of southern Lebanon, but made no strikes.

In Beirut today, Norwegian

Charge d'Affaires Hans Longva said a Norwegian helicopter unit will withdraw from UNIFIL later this month.

Mr. Longva said the 36-man unit will pull out after the current UNIFIL mandate expires on June 19, and that his government has been unable to recruit replacements.

Well-informed sources added that Italy was expected to provide a fresh unit.

Mr. Longva told Reuters that the Norwegian team, which is made up of volunteers, will have completed a six-month contract.

He said "We have informed the U.N. that we have been unable to recruit another unit. The problem is that helicopter crews are in demand by oil companies operating in the North Sea, which offer higher salaries."

The Norwegian team lost four people during their risky tour in the troubled south. Four of its aircraft were damaged by shelling from rightist militias in April, but there were no casualties.

Sadat heads for landslide win in 'multi-party' general election

CAIRO, June 9 (R)—The ruling National Democratic Party (NDP) today headed for a landslide victory in the first multi-party general election in Egypt for 27 years. The results were seen here as a massive confidence vote for President Anwar Sadat's peace treaty with Israel.

Party Secretary-General Fikri Makram Ebeid said the NDP expected to finish with between 85 and 95 per cent of the vote. He rejected left-wing charges that the polls were rigged.

With just over a third of the results declared, the NDP had won 127 seats to the new 382-member parliament. The Socialist Labour Party won seven and independents two. Projections based on these results would give the NDP at least 325 seats.

All cabinet ministers who ran in the elections, including Prime Minister Mustapha Khalil were returned.

The leftist Unionist Progressive Party (UPP) has so far not won any of the 31 seats it contested. The Liberal Socialist Party is also yet to win a seat.

The UPP, led by Mr. Khaled Mohieddin, strongly opposes President Sadat's policies in general and the Egyptian-Israeli bilateral peace treaty in particular.

Mr. Sadat and Mr. Mohieddin, both former army officers, were members of the revolutionary council which ousted the monarchy in 1952.

Mr. Ebeid today accused the UPP of subservience to the Soviet Union and said the election results "shipped them back to Moscow."

NDP spokesman Mansour Hassan said irregularities in the elections if any, were because of inefficiency, rather than deliberate rigging.

He said this was a complaint also made by some NDP members who lost the elections.

Cairo Radio said the final results of the elections will be announced early tomorrow.

Mubarak to U.S. to brief Carter

CAIRO, June 9 (Agencies)—Egyptian Vice President Hosni Mubarak left today for the United States on a four-day visit during which he will brief President Carter on talks with Israel about Palestinian self-rule in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. He will also give President Carter a message from President Anwar Sadat. Mr. Mubarak was also expected to discuss a time-table for supplying the Egyptian army with U.S. weapons and a proposal by President Sadat to build some U.S. arms under licence, according to the mass circulation Akhbar El Yom weekly newspaper.

Mr. Mubarak's meeting with President Carter has been scheduled for Monday. Afterwards, Mr. Mubarak will visit London for talks with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher on political and military cooperation between Egypt and Britain.

'Thorny' non-aligned issues referred to Havana summit

COLOMBO, June 9 (R)—The formal closing session of a non-aligned ministerial meeting was delayed for several hours tonight as delegations tried to agree on a description of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

Arah states, led by Iraq and Syria, are demanding Egypt's suspension from the 88-nation non-aligned movement because the peace treaty violated non-aligned principles.

But the move has been strongly opposed by some countries, especially bulk African states, and the issue now will be referred to the full summit of the movement in Havana in September.

Delegation sources said a political committee was trying to phrase a section of the proposed final declaration devoted to the Middle East in a manner acceptable to all sides.

They said delegates to the four-day meeting here were also trying to reconcile differences between Algeria and Morocco over the Western Sahara, where Algerian-backed Polisario rebels are fighting for independence.

The 25-nation coordinating bureau of the movement is also expected to pass on to the Havana summit the issue of who should represent Kampuchea in the group.

But, despite opposition from neighbouring Afghanistan, the bureau recommended that the Havana meeting should admit Pakistan and Iran to the non-aligned movement along with Surinam, Grenada and Bolivia.

Their final declaration which will go before the September summit will also include an economic section expressing grave concern at what they termed the unsatisfactory outcome of the recent Manila meeting of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD).

Iran and Pakistan told the meeting they had severed links with the Central Treaty Organisation (CENTO) earlier this year and were now genuinely non-aligned. They denied they were interfering in the internal affairs of other countries.

Afghanistan's Education Minister, Mr. Abdul Rachid Jalili, said yesterday that the two countries were "using Islam as an instrument of their destructive political ends."

Mr. Jalili reiterated the charges again today after Pakistani Foreign Adviser Agha Shahi told the conference his country was willing to open bilateral negotiations on Afghan refugees in Pakistan.

However, Mr. Jalili said Afghanistan would support Pakistan's application for full membership if it stopped interfering in his country's internal affairs by the time of the movement's Havana summit in September.

Pakistani weapons had been seized in the hands of "gangsters operating in Afghanistan," Mr. Jalili said. He added that there were camps in Pakistan for training "bandits and terrorists" to be sent into Afghanistan.

Earlier, Iran's Under-Secretary for Economic and International Affairs, Mr. Ali Sadeghi Teltrani, said his country's new revolutionary government was opposed to all military arrangements and blocs.

The two issues of Kampuchean representation and the Arab move to have Egypt suspended from the non-aligned movement overshadowed the four-day conference here but Indian External Affairs Minister Atal Bihari Vajpayee dismissed the idea that the movement was going through an unprecedented crisis.

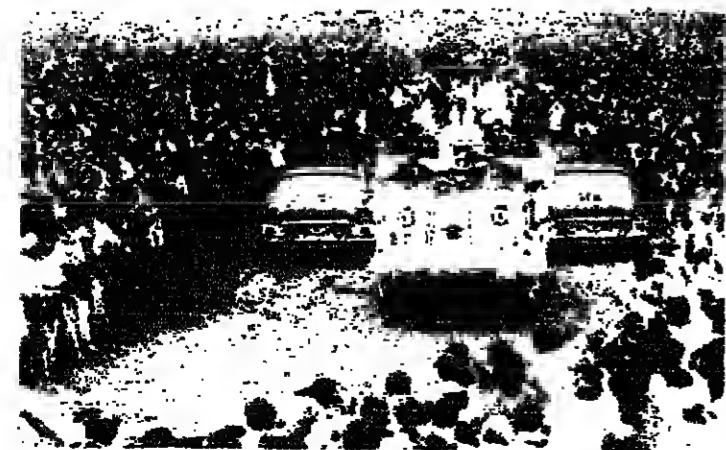

Mr. Vajpayee told reporters: "There were prophets of gloom who predicted that the movement would be divided in Colombo but they were proved to be wrong."

He said the Kampuchean question was not allowed to break up the unity of the movement.

But there was no decision on whether the ousted Pol Pot government or the Vietnamese-backed Hong Samrin administration in Phnom Penh should occupy the Kampuchean seat.

Delegation sources said 10 bureau members favoured the seating of the Pol Pot government without the right to speak, a compromise worked out at an earlier bureau meeting in Maputo and accepted here, and eight wanted both delegations out until the issue had been resolved.

THE UNITED STATES goes into the Egyptian-Israeli talks on Palestinian "autonomy" in which it is to act as a "full partner" rather than simply as a mediator, with several basic misconceptions.

Chief among these are that Israel has any intention to temper its Zionist ideology with any "compromises" or "concessions" on the question of Palestinian self-determination in the Palestinian Arab homeland; and that the Arabs are in any way willing to negotiate away their most basic, most fundamental principles concerning their rights to that homeland.

Mr. Robert Strauss, the head of the American negotiating team, expresses no surprise at the respective negotiating postures of Israel and Egypt going into the talks, which resume on Monday. He views these as bargaining tactics, as extreme positions to be reconciled through meticulous bargaining and plain old-fashioned horse trading in the course of negotiations which, in the U.S. view, contain their own inbuilt forward-thrusting dynamic.

Let us leave aside for the moment the fact that the United States continues mistakenly to regard Egypt as a legitimate negotiating representative for the Palestinians themselves, despite the resounding rejection of that role by all the rest of the Arabs. When the scenario itself is a disaster, it does not really matter who the players are.

We cannot vouch for, or be responsible for, the degree to which the Egyptian side is really prepared to stand up in these negotiations for the minimum Arab demands for the total withdrawal of Israel from the occupied territories, a return of Arab Jerusalem to Arab sovereignty, an end to all Jewish settlement activity in the Arab homeland, and full implementation of the Palestinian Arab people's right to self-determination.

Having been given no alternative but to reject the negotiating forum provided the Arab party selected and the "autonomy proposals" admitted as the centrepiece of the discussions, we have nothing to gain from trying to dictate what the proper Egyptian negotiating posture should be.

That is regrettable, for we are left momentarily powerless to resist the imposition of an Israeli-devised formula for formalising, legalising and legitimising Israel's annexation of the West Bank and Gaza.

What is most regrettable, however, is not so much that the self-appointed peacemakers represented by Mr. Strauss have accepted Egypt as a partner qualified to negotiate on behalf of the Palestinians -- whose suffering under occupation has actually increased since the signing of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty -- but that the United States refuses to appreciate what Jordan and many other Arab voices have been telling it persistently and consistently for months. This is that the Arabs, in seeking to regain their inalienable human and national rights, will enter into negotiations only when those rights are seen as the target of the discussions, not as a starting point or an item on an agenda or a price tag subject to marketplace haggling.

If the Egyptian leaders seek to bargain away the Arab birthright, then its rightful owners will rise up to reclaim it by whatever means necessary. But we should not be asked to participate in the auctioneering ourselves.

ARAB PRESS COMMENTARY

AL RA'I SATURDAY LASHES OUT at Israel's continuing aggression in south Lebanon which comes at a time when the PLO has decided to withdraw its forces from populated areas.

The paper further criticises Israel for sending its bulldozers to level 800 dunams of land in the Nablins area to build a new settlement there.

Hoping that the Security Council session scheduled for Tuesday will succeed in putting an end to Israel's "barbaric crimes" in south Lebanon, the paper calls on the Arabs to stick together, build up their strength and use their resources in service of their destiny-shaping cause.

AL DUSTOUR says it seems that a trend to play a positive role in the achievement of a comprehensive settlement in the Middle East, is currently crystallising in the EEC.

This trend, the paper says, has become apparent through an initiative urging the EEC to assume such a role, made by the Federal Republic of Germany.

The document stressing the rights of the Palestinian people recently issued by NATO foreign ministers provides more evidence of the existence of such a trend, the paper says.

Although the Arab states have long urged the EEC to play a more active role in the process of finding a solution to the Middle East problem in accordance with U.N. resolutions, they did not appear to do so until long after the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty had been signed, and until after the negotiations on self-rule in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip had begun, the paper says.

The paper says that the EEC states have become conscious of their responsibility to play a more active role in the Middle East, due to the following factors: first, the failure of the Camp David process to attract any Arab countries, with the exception of Egypt; second, the failure of foreign pressures designed to make the Arabs reduce their opposition to the Egyptian-Israeli treaty; third, the harm inflicted on the U.S. status in the area as a result of its involvement in the Camp David process, the negotiations on self-rule and the Egyptian-Israeli treaty; fourth, the realisation by EEC states that the Arabs are determined to press forward with their struggle; fifth, the mounting evidence that the negotiations on self-rule will eventually fail; sixth, the fear of EEC states that their standing idly by might jeopardise their status in the area; and seventh, the increasing importance of the Arabs as oil-producers and the desire of the EEC states to establish good relations with them.

The Arabs, the paper concludes, should make EEC countries understand that the Arabs will reject any action they take to solve the Middle East issue if it proves to be incompatible with the resolutions of the United Nations.

Birzeit U. head steps up effort to arouse world opinion on closure

By Khouri
Jordan Times

An escalating international attention over the closure of Birzeit University by the Israeli occupation authorities has prompted a group of evangelical Christian leaders meeting in La Grange, Illinois, to issue a statement on May 20 which challenged the Israeli claim to Palestine based on biblical or divine right theories, and specifically protested the Israeli practice of closing Palestinian universities and schools in the occupied areas.

On May 24, the Church and International Affairs Committee of the United Presbyterian Church adopted a resolution affirming the church's support for Birzeit University, calling on the Israeli occupation authorities to reopen it immediately, and directing church officials to bring the resolution to the attention of American government officials, the Israeli ambassador in Washington and the secretary general of the United Nations.

The Palestine Human Rights Campaign, a Washington-based group led by independent American human rights activists, has initiated a campaign by which American citizens are urged to send cables to the Israeli ambassador in Washington and the minister of defence in Israel demanding the immediate reopening of Birzeit University.

Dr. Nasir held a press conference in Washington on May 26 in which he appealed for help in reopening the university.

On June 7, New York Times columnist Anthony Lewis wrote that "Israel must hammer its heart so much that it can close the West Bank's leading university, Birzeit, on 'security' grounds that would not satisfy the rulers of South Africa."

A Committee of Concern for Birzeit University has been established by the Palestine Human Rights Campaign, and can be contacted at 1322 18th Street, N.W., Washington, DC, 20036.

Dr. Nasir explained to the Jordan Times the background of the closure of Birzeit University.

"The order for closing the university came at the end of what had begun as a calm day in Birzeit. Israel was celebrating the thirty-first anniversary of its establishment and high school students in Birzeit, as elsewhere in the West Bank, went on a protest march late in the morning. Afterwards, a university student was wounded by an armed Israeli civilian—a member of the extremist Gush Emunim group—who had been on his way to a new Israeli settlement in the vicinity but instead drove close to the university and shot at students on the campus.

The situation was aggravated by army units that arrived and besieged the campus, placing it under curfew. At 9 p.m. the order to close the university was issued. In the meantime, nearly 150 students who were on their way home had their identity cards confiscated, thus making them liable to immediate arrest at any of the several army checkpoints that are always present in the West Bank. When they reported afterwards to collect their cards, they were held for several hours and interrogated, some of them were beaten in an attempt to coerce them to sign false confessions; seven are still under arrest.

"During the afternoon of Thursday, May 3, a group of high ranking Israeli army officers came to the university without prior notice to conduct a search of the campus. University officials protested this unprecedented intrusion into the campus. The search order stated that 'there is reason to suspect that in the campus there are objects which are subject to seizure,' but no such objects were found or seized when the search was carried out."

"On Friday, May 10, an army unit surrounded the house of two American students at the University, twins Carl and Michael Derrick, aged 20. They were served with a deportation order and taken, under armed escort, to police headquarters in occupied Jerusalem. A lawyer managed to obtain a three-day stay of the deportation order, but the students were detained in Jerusalem and deported on Monday, May 14."

Dr. Nasir said that news coverage of the university in Israeli media during recent months had become increasingly hostile and misleading. The university therefore decided to hold a press conference for foreign correspondents on Monday, May 14, to present its point of view and to highlight facts underlying the events of the past two weeks that had been misrepresented or ignored. The press conference was not held because it was banned by the occupation authorities.

The closing of the university on May 2 was the second time within the past few weeks that the university was closed by Israeli military order. The first order came on the eve of the signing of the separate Egyptian-Israeli treaty and was effective from March 26 to April 10, 1974. Faculty members of the university were barred from the security of the Israeli forces and the preservation of law and order."

The university protested this unjustified action and the unfounded allegation that the preservation of law and order required closing the university.

Dr. Nasir charged that "the recent harassment of Birzeit University by the occupation authorities, culminating in its closure, is a serious intensification of the active hostility and obstructionism that characterises the policy of the Israeli authorities towards the university. Previous examples of this policy include a rampage by soldiers in the men's hostel in March, 1976, in which 15 students were injured. There was also my own deportation without trial in November, 1974. Faculty member Tayseer Azuri was arrested in April, 1974; he was detained for 45 months without being tried or even charged. The university was closed by military order for two weeks in December, 1973, in the wake of demonstrations throughout the West Bank to protest the deportation of eight residents of the West Bank.

"Many other instances of interference with the normal and legitimate operations of the university can be cited. Students working for a teaching certificate were barred this year from the customary practice-teaching in high school. Graduate students in the Department of Education are denied access to data needed for their research, and those who wish to conduct field work in schools are prevented from carrying it out. Acquisition by the university of non-political academic books and journals in Arabic is severely restricted. The Israeli authorities have not honoured the customs-exempt status which the university had enjoyed before the occupation, thus burdening its budget for vitally needed equipment. Work permits for foreign faculty members, which are normally renewed, are delayed for months. The Community Work Programme of the university, in which students work on rural, health or educational projects that benefit the population, has been seriously handicapped by the refusal of permission for work-camps as well as by army harassment of students participating in one-day projects.

"It is clear that the interference of the Israeli military occupation authorities has gravely hindered the normal and legitimate academic functions of Birzeit University. This interference has compromised and violated the rights of the university as an institution of learning. It has created an atmosphere of terror and uncertainty in the university and among its students and faculty, which stifles the spirit of intellectual inquiry.

"It is also clear that the harassment and intimidation of the university by the authorities form a pattern of consistent, intentional and escalating policy. This unduly policy aims at Birzeit University as its target precisely because the university is a serious academic institution that is determined to fulfill its responsibilities and obligations scrupulously. This determination is evidenced by the continued growth and development of the university despite the severe obstacles that are placed in its way. It is also reflected in the international support and recognition that it has earned. To counter this reality, Israel has attempted to fabricate a false image of the university that portrays it as a political centre rather than as an academic institution and that burdens it with responsibilities beyond the scope of its actual concerns and imputes to it motives that are not its own. At the same time, this false image is intended to turn Birzeit University into a convenient scapegoat for the military occupation command which finds itself unable to deal with the deep and growing resentment and discontent that prevail throughout the occupied areas.

"I accuse Israel of systematically obstructing and interfering with Birzeit University and of harassing and intimidating its administration, faculty and students.

"I accuse Israel of trying to undermine Birzeit University because the spirit of intellectual freedom that the University represents is Israel's strongest foe: the truth."

"I affirm the right of the University to perform its normal and legitimate functions as an academic institution, and the right of every member of the university community to learn, to conduct research guided by the criteria of academic excellence and intellectual integrity and unrestricted by the threat of the use of force."

"I affirm the right of every member of the Birzeit University community to freedom of speech and to individual and collective expression by peaceful means."

Evert wins French tennis crown

PARIS, June 9 (R)—American world tennis champion Chris Evert, 24, today won the French women's singles title for the third time, beating Wendy Turnbull of Australia 6-2, 6-0 in an undisputed final. Turnbull only once led the American, at 2-1 in the first set. Evert won the next 11 games to sew up the match in 53 minutes. The 26-year-old Turnbull, who comes from Brisbane, had never beaten Evert in nine previous meetings and she rarely looked as if she believed in her chances today. Evert dictated the pace of the match from the baseline, deliberately engaging her opponent in long rallies, and time and again the Australian lost patience and hit out. The world champion was some way from her best form too, but it hardly seemed to matter. Turnbull, rated fifth in the world at present, had been expected to try and break the American's rhythm by moving up to the net at every opportunity.

European basketball tourney opens

ROME, June 9 (R)—The European Basketball Championship opens today with 12 nations barding in three cities and host Italy determined to snatch the title from defending champion Yugoslavia. Divided in three groups, the qualifying matches for next week's finals in Turin take place in the north Italian towns of Gorizia and Mestre and in the medieval city of Siena in central Italy. Italy base their title hopes on painstaking preparations and meet Czechoslovakia, Greece and Belgium in Mestre. They should have no difficulty qualifying for the finals along with the Czechoslovak squad, although star Fabrizio della Fiori dropped out yesterday with a leg injury. Yugoslavia face an equally easy task in Gorizia where they are grouped with Israel, Poland and France.

Scintillate gallops to Epsom Oaks victory

EPSOM, England, June 9 (R)—Scintillate, a 20 to 1 outsider, won the 201st Epsom Oaks today as all the better-fancied fillies failed to make a show. Former champion jockey Pat Eddery came from last to first on the winner to land the winner's purse of £47,310. The filly was going so easily a couple of furlongs from home in the one mile four furlongs race that Eddery was able to take a look behind for possible danger before shaking her up to master runner-up Bonnie Isle, a 12 to 1 chance ridden by current champion rider Willie Carson. Drawing away in the last furlong, Scintillate won by three lengths from Bonnie Isle, with Britannia's Rule, also starting at 12 to 1, a length further away third of the 14 runners. Reprocolor, fourth at 28 to 1, led round Tattenham corner about four furlongs from the finish, with Eddery making headway on Scintillate. Paul Cook drove Reprocolor on strenuously but Bonnie Isle came looming up with Carson hard at work in an attempt to add this classic to his Epsom Derby victory on Troy three days ago. However, it was obvious two furlongs out that Scintillate had the measure of Carson's mount and she moved smoothly to victory. Only L'ile du Reve of the fancied contenders made any real challenge. The 5 to 2 favourite was second into the straight, but faded out of the battle two furlongs out. Rimosa's Pet and Irish-trained Godetia, also heavily backed, both ran very disappointingly. It was a second Oaks victory for owner Jim Morrison, trainer Jeremy Tree and jockey Eddery. Morrison and Tree were associated in the 1975 triumph of Juliette Marry, a half-sister to today's winner, who is by Sparkler out of the Worden II mare Set Free.
